Bell Ringing

How many times have you read the advice of the medical experts about taking more physical exercise – determined to do something, but somehow just never got around to it?

Perhaps you have thought of joining the local health club, before realising it isn't that local, or thought maybe people will laugh at me, and can I really afford that monthly subscription? What about pounding the local streets in a bid for fitness – not really very appealing either?

If these ideas do not suit, then I am delighted to be able to put forward a more innovative and altogether more rounded pastime. Bell ringing is an art form that the general public has only a very limited knowledge of.

The enclosed leaflet gives outline details of what sort of people ring (basically everybody), a bit about the history, what is meant by “change ringing”, and perhaps most importantly – why you should become a bell ringer.

Ringling is unique in giving opportunities for not only physical exercise, but also mental challenges, team working, musical and architectural appreciation, travel opportunities, and all this at little or no cost to you. There is no spiritual prerequisite, although you could add this to the list of opportunities if you wished to do so.

Please give me a call if you are interested in any way, or come along to the Church sometime when you hear the bells being rung. It might be just what you are looking for without realising it.

Yours truly,
